

TAKING OUR FAMILY SHOP TO $15M.

WHERE IT STARTED.

Our family started our HVAC business in Martinsburg, West Virginia. They kept it small — a tight crew, honest work, one customer at a time.

I grew up in the trucks, ran install jobs every summer, then joined the marketing side. We got good at bringing in calls — Google Ads, LSAs, SEO, the whole stack.

But more calls were not enough.

$4M → $15M

CHAPTER TWO

WE HIT A WALL.

You can book all the calls in the world. If your systems are weak, the money still leaks out.

So we did what most shops don't: we studied the biggest HVAC companies in the country — the $20M and $40M shops — and built the same systems for ours. We rebuilt the call center, service, and sales, tracked the right numbers, and trained our managers to hit them.

WHY WE'RE HERE

WHY JMCG EXISTS.

After years inside our own shop, I started talking with other HVAC and plumbing owners — and they had the same problems we did.

01 THE PATTERN WAS ALWAYS THE SAME.

The owners who grew weren't the ones who bought more leads. Every time, they were the ones whose operations didn't leak — whose calls got answered, whose jobs got followed up, whose numbers were on the wall.

02 MARKETING WAS NEVER THE WHOLE ANSWER.

Marketing matters. But if your service department, your CSRs, your sales process, and your KPIs aren't tight, more leads just make the leaks worse. The growth was never about feeding the top of the funnel — it was about closing the gaps underneath it.

03 WHAT JMCG DOES NOW.

We help HVAC and plumbing owners in the $1M–$15M range install the same systems that scaled our shop — the right departments, the right KPIs, the right training. Whether you want a legacy to pass to your kids or a business to sell down the road, the foundation is the same.

YOU CAN'T SCALE WHAT
YOU CAN'T MEASURE. YOU
CAN'T GROW WHAT'S LEAKING.
